

Darlene Purdy

I am a former Jubilee parent and stay at home mother of two boys, Aiden and Mason. My husband and I have recently relocated to Franklin Park, PA. I have a bachelor's degree in Secondary Education English from California University of Pennsylvania and a master's degree in Public Policy and Management with a concentration in Educational Technology Management from the Heinz School at Carnegie Mellon University. Before staying home to raise my children, I worked in the field of education for 13 years, the majority at Clairton City School District. During my tenure at Clairton, I spent ten years as a high school English teacher. My last two years at Clairton were spent as the district's instructional technology coach, working both at the school and district level overseeing grants and strategic planning for the district's technology initiatives. I have also been Jubilee's All School Unit Coordinator for the past three years. I feel blessed by my connection with Jubilee in seeing how it has prayerfully enriched the lives of my extended family's children and then my own children. I look to use my background in education and my connection with god to further support Jubilee's growth.
